

Serving Through Client-Focused

Advocacy

Drew Haskins '97, Attorney at Law

Drew recently joined the law firm of Heninger Garrison Davis in Alabama. "I am practicing in the firm's general litigation group, which includes representing clients involved in wrongful death, medical malpractice, product liability, insurance and business disputes throughout the state of Alabama." He was previously employed by Christian & Small, a litigation practice which consisted primarily of insurance defense and medical malpractice. The passion and skills Drew brings to each and every one of his cases allows him to be a nonstop advocate for his clients.

Previous experience includes Judicial Extern with Judge John E. Ott, U.S. Magistrate, Northern District of Alabama, Christian & Small legal assistant, and work as a law clerk for The Kilgore Firm and Jefferson County District Attorney's Office.

After graduating from McCallie School in 2004, Drew attended The University of Tennessee, graduating in 2008 Cum Laude with a bachelors degree. He then attended Samford University, Cumberland School of Law, Graduating in 2012.

Initially when entering law school, Drew had expectations of one day practicing transactional law. Sometimes, fate has a way of intervening in plans. In his first year of law school, Drew decided to participate in a trial competition, quickly finding out that his true passion was being in the courtroom. Over the course of his next two years in law school, he served as an advocate on five championship trial teams. Over 230 teams across the nation participated in this competition. Drew's impressive awards and recognition list is shown below.
